

ABSTRACT

NUR ELMA INDRIANI, 15816539

Gunadarma University Student Choir Swara Darmagita Group Communication

Key Words : Group Communication, Student Choir UG Swara Darmagita

(xiii + 57 + Attachment)

Group communication as face to face interaction between three or more persons with already known purpose, like information sharing, self protection, problem solving, where the group members can considering other group member personal characteristic appropriately. Criteria for group communication can review from various things, such as type, form, function, and nature of the communication. Verbally group communication used frequently came through jargons/ terms which only understand by the group member. With the result that every group member can communicate and make mutual communication well. Furthermore every group member has the rights to express their opinion whether inside or outside the forum personally. The research focusing on how group communication that happen between members and researchers using group thinking theory. This research used descriptive qualitative method. Data collecting techniques used is direct interview with the members of PSM UG Swara darmagita and documentation study. The result of this research indicate that group communication proven offer major role within PSM UG Swara darmagita group which can be seen from high communication intensity and directly make intermember relationship become closer.

Bibliography (1992-2017)